

Sea-Going Orchids

Lieut. Lamar Burrow, of Jackson, Mississippi, tends his orchid collection aboard the United States destroyer-escort Calcaterra at Fremantle yesterday.

He has two Tasmanian orchids in the collection, which he started six months ago when the ship left the U.S.

The ship is on its way back to America after having been on duty between New Zealand and the Antarctic gathering weather information for the U.S. Antarctic research programme.